IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR INVESTORS

Regarding the benchmark index mentioned in this document : Parties entering into transactions (such as a derivative or financing transaction) or investing in financial instruments that use a benchmark index are exposed to the risk that :

(1) such benchmark index may be subject to methodological or other changes which could affect the value of the relevant transaction; or

(2) (i) may become not compliant with applicable laws and regulations (such as the European Benchmark Regulation), (ii) may cease to be published, or (iii) the supervisor or administrator of any such benchmark may make a statement that the relevant benchmark is no longer representative, and as a consequence the relevant benchmark may be replaced by another benchmark which may have an adverse and material impact on the economics of the relevant transactions. You should conduct your own independent investigation and analysis of the potential consequences of any relevant risks such as those mentioned above, particularly in light of the ongoing industry initiatives related to the development of alternative reference rates and the update of the relevant market standard documentation.
